Among documents acquired in November 1951 pertaining to Chinese coastal shipping, there appeared several forms printed in three languages - Chinese, Russian, and English. In the past most of these forms were printed in Chinese and English only. The new forms with the Russian language are intended not only for larger ships, which would normally go into Soviet waters, but also for small craft of less than 100 tons. The forms which have thus far appeared in the Russian language are inspection and quarantine certificates.
